TOTAL POPULATION, INCREASE, AND DISTRIBUTION.

Population of the state.—Mississippi was admitted to the Union as the twentieth state in December, 1817. The area now in southern Mississippi and Alabama between the thirty-first parallel and the latitude of the mouth of the Yazoo River (about  $32^{\circ} 30'$ ) was organized in 1798 as the territory of Mississippi. In 1804 the northern boundary was extended to the southern line of Tennessee. In 1812 the area south of the thirty-first parallel between the Perdido and Pearl Rivers was taken from Spain and added to Mississippi territory, but Spain did not formally relinquish its claim to this area until the Florida cession in 1819. In March, 1817, the territory of Alabama was organized from a part of Mississippi territory, leaving its boundaries substantially the same as those of the present state.

According to the Fourteenth Census, taken as of January 1, 1920, the population of Mississippi is 1,790,618, which represents a decrease of 6,496, or four-tenths of 1 per cent, since 1910. During the same period the population of the United States increased by 14.9 per cent. The following summary shows the population of Mississippi from 1800 to 1920, inclusive, together with the number and per cent of increase for each decade, in comparison with the per cent of increase for the United States as a whole:

Counties.—Mississippi has 82 counties, of which 3—Humphreys, Stone, and Walthall—have been organized since 1910. Of the 79 counties in existence in 1910, 30 show increases and 49 decreases since that year. Five of the decreases, however, appear for 1910 whose area has been reduced since 1910. (See table 1.) Because of the organization of the three counties named from parts of eight others it has been necessary, in preparing the maps on page 3, showing rates of increase or decrease in total and rural population, to make the following combinations: Holmes, Humphreys, Sharkey, Sunflower, Washington, and Yazoo Counties; Harrison and Stone Counties; Marion, Pike, and Walthall Counties.

POPULATION—MISSISSIPPI.

Density of population.—The total land area of the state is 46,362 square miles. The average number of inhabitants to the square mile in 1920 is 38.6 (see Table 1), as against 38.8 in 1910 and 33.5 in 1900.

Minor civil divisions.—The political units into which the counties are divided are collectively termed "minor civil divisions." The primary divisions of the Mississippi counties are termed beats and are 410 in number. The secondary divisions, of which there are 333, comprise 44 cities, 169 towns, and 120 villages. One city is coextensive with the beat in which located, and each of 5 cities, 11 towns, and 1 village comprises 2 or more beats or parts of beats. (See Table 2.)

Cities.—Mississippi has 44 cities, of which Meridian, with a population of 23,399, is the largest. (See Tables 3 and 4.)

The following summary shows, for each city having 10,000 or more inhabitants in 1920, the population at each census for which figures are available, together with the number and per cent of increase during the preceding decade:

Urban and rural population.—The Census Bureau defines urban population as that residing in cities and other incorporated places having 2,500 inhabitants or more, and rural population as that residing outside such incorporated places.

The following summary presents, for the last three censuses, figures showing the urban and rural population of the state distributed among places grouped according to specified limits of population. The classification for each census is based upon the population of the various places as shown by the returns of that census. Consequently the territory comprised within any one class of cities or that designated as urban or as rural does not remain fixed, because any given place may, through the growth or the decline of its population, pass from one class to another at successive censuses. The proportion of the population of Mississippi living in places of 2,500 or more increased from 7.7 per cent in 1900 to 11.5 per cent in 1910 and to 13.4 per cent in 1920.
